

*O wind, rend open the heat,
cut apart the heat,
rend it to tatters.*

*Fruit cannot drop
through this thick air-- fruit cannot fall into heat that presses up and blunts the points of pears
and rounds the grapes.*

*Cut the heat--
plough through it,
turning it on either side
of your path.*

by Hilda Doolittle